The impact of Design in Social Media today

Aims

- Identify what is the importance of design when branding for social media;
- Identity the roles of designers when branding, and in the future of, social media;
- Understand what design skills are necessary to work in social media;
- Understand the value design can bring to branding for social media;
Branding in social media today

- Companies view the world as their potential global market, brand builders want to globalize their brands worldwide, following the market trend.

- The market is shifting from service economy of the late 20th century to the “experience economy” or, as the Nomura Economic Research Institute describes it, “The age of creativity”.

- Brands need to match these changes by developing experiential customer interfaces.

- Brands need to: identify; inform; imagine; immerse; and intrigue.

- Businesses have to define a balanced strategy for both offline (bricks) and online (clicks) presences.

- Marketers can control brand of their brands (products and services) and packages on store shelves, but can’t control it on cyberspace and this has become a major concern.

Branding today

- A brand is no longer what advertising say it is, it’s an image of what consumers see.

- Consumers have the power now, they are better informed and can rate, review and share information concerning brands, products and services and recommend it to friends.

- Social networks are all about experiences and focus on consumer experience. Being considered a convergence culture:
Approach

- This study is part of a PhD thesis that has other research methods not referred here.

- A pilot study was done in Portugal with 5 respondents. All marketers that have been involved in social media projects for brands.

- This pilot study provided feedback on the online questionnaire questions and warning and whether the methods are appropriate or too complicated (Baker 1994: 182-3). It also improved the validity of the proposed questionnaire.

Approach

- The social survey method was selected because it collects data in a standardized way from a specific sample of respondents.

- 103 valid responses were obtained from the online survey from both Portugal and the UK by social media, branding, marketing and design professionals, from industry and academia.

- The online questionnaire consisted of seven questions. Likert scale questions and a final open question.

- This questionnaire was emailed to design, branding, marketing and social media professionals, companies, freelancers and consulting agencies.

- It was also published in social networks like Facebook groups, Twitter and Linkedin.

The impact of Design in Social Media today
Conclusions

- The majority of respondents agree that design is valuable in social media, although some respondents mentioned it had a limited influence due to the platforms used today.

- Current networks don’t allow real engagement with the audiences and there is a need to re-design them.

- Design is crucial to create consistency throughout all media channels.

- Design works as a differentiator, amplifying interaction between brands, clients and fans.

- Storytelling helps create brand empathy and a close connection with the user.

- Designers craft stories and experiences which increase engagement;

- Good social media design is trustworthy and easily shared among fans, which creates a competitive advantage.
Conclusions

- With hyper competition, design adds to the ROI with its ability to perform branding solutions;

- Strong design adds to brand personality and brand experience, enhancing the brand in consumers minds.

- Design thinking gives shape to ideas and is critical in all effective communications.

- By creating value for business design offers a competitive advantage, being an investment in innovation, positioning, branding and communication that increases costumer loyalty, trust and market share;

- As a strategic asset Design helps to deal with social media complexities, adding creative solutions;

- Design should be implemented early in corporate plans, not only as visual beautification.
